Kenneth Dold
Webmaster

Webmaster@moaacfc.org

I started designing and building websites in 1998, and I have continued to build them, using many different software programs. Currently, I use WordPress, Adobe Dreamweaver, or the Wix website builder, along with add-on extensions for most of my designs. I may also use other software depending on the job and customer requirements.

I started designing and building databases in 1995. I have used many different software platforms, finally deciding on Microsoft Access, which gives a great product for businesses or organizations.

I started putting together social media sites in 2018.

I continue to take classes in website design/development, database design, social media design, and other areas that help customers build a stronger presence online.

I love working with my customers to build products that will help make their business or organization more efficient and enable them to reach more customers.